FSS: First-Hand Carrier Observation

For the past 60 days, I have been in Hyattsville, MD with three other union members and four managers collecting data on the use of various ways for park and loop carriers to handle the different bundles of mail in an FSS office. I get out of there on April 9. I must stress that I and the other members of this study are merely data collectors. While I have submitted a written suggestion for a variation of the Low Volume case, I have no direct input regarding the final decision of the parties. The "sculch" tray has been a source of frustration for the 20 carriers involved in the study and for the data collectors. I'll just say that if you look up the word "sculch" on the internet you will learn that one of the definitions is; "a thing not highly regarded".
